When Molly and Sam got to the game their jaws dropped. They had never seen a place so big. Right after Molly and Sam found their seats Sam's uncle had to go to his newsreporter area inside the building so they went too. When they got their they had to sit in the lobby. When Sam's Uncle came back out they went into the Celtics locker room. Unfortunately, they didn't get to see everyone because they were pushed by the tour guides.

The Celtics ended up winning because of a game winning assist by Josh Cameron. Molly knew that since she didn't get to talk to him in the locker room she was going to find a way to talk to Josh. She had a plan.

Molly's plan was simple. Be able to talk to Josh what she planned on doing required a lot of sneakiness. First they had to find out where the Celtics parked their cars. They parked them in a secret lot surrounded by garages. Sam would run up to the guard and make up a story about how he couldn't find his sister. While he was making Molly would hop the fence, duck behind some cars and wait for Sam to join her. After Sam joined her they would wait for Josh to come out. Once he did, Sam would pop out and ask for his autograph. While he was talking, Molly would slip into the car and go to the trunk. She would then hitch a ride to his house where she could talk to him all she wanted.

One day Sam and Molly were walking home from school. Molly had just gotten done with her basketball tryouts. After tryouts she told Sam that she was obviously the best player on the court. As they were walking they turned into an alley. There they saw Josh Cameron in disguise. The reason Josh Cameron was there because he wanted to apologize for treating Molly so bad at his house. They decided to go for a walk and talk it over. They ended up going to a basketball hoop to shoot. Josh realized that Molly was really there. Then he thought maybe she is my daughter.

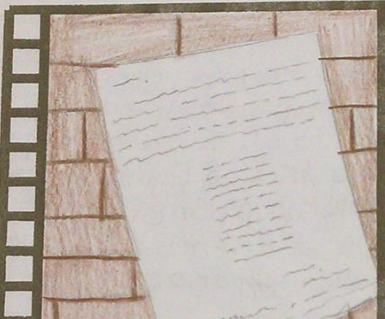

Bill Evans came home in a great mood. Bill Evans was Molly's Guardian that she was staying with. It was technically Molly's dad but she insisted on calling him Bill because she said he could never be her dad. Right after Bill came home so happy he offered to take Molly and Jimmy out for ice cream at the Scoop. Jimmy was Molly's fake sister. Molly said she didn't want to because she knew Jimmy wanted some father-daughter time. They said they would bring a banana split back for her. Later on she saw them coming back out her window. She saw that Jimmy was laughing and running from her father. That's when she tripped and the ice cream bowl hit the ground. Jimmy then started to cry. Bill ran over to her and cradled her in her arms and kissed her. Once Molly saw this she realized how much she needed a dad. Her face got hot, her eyes filled up with tears. She began to cry.

The next day Molly and her fake mom Barbara went over to Josh's house to talk about what's been going on. Barbara never did like Josh in college so it was kind of awkward for them. It was also good for them because they needed to get caught up on what they had missed. After that they started talking about Molly. They talked about the letter Josh had given from Molly and read it. He said that he believed that Molly was his kid. This made Molly mad, she couldn't believe what she was hearing. Then they started talking about having Molly take a DNA test to see if it was true. Josh then said that that was the reason he called Barbara over. He said that he needed her permission before he could go through with the tests.

On the way home from Josh's Molly and Barbara have a talk. Molly asks if she has decided if they can go through with the tests and if she can spend more time with Josh. Barbara says no. That's when Molly starts to plead with Barbara. Barbara and Molly sit down on a bench and talk about the decision. Barbara tells Molly that they are going to be moving. Barbara says that they are moving right after Christmas and that Molly can spend time with Josh up until Christmas that night. Molly has an idea. Since she has six weeks. Also if she wins she has to win him over in six weeks. Also if she wins him over then she doesn't have to move because she can live with Josh.

After their fight, Shay comes to Tally's dorm at night. She apologizes and asks her to run away with her. Tally tells her about a place called the Smoke. The Smoke is a place that Uglies run to so they can turn Pretty. Shay was supposed to run away with some of her other friends, but chickened out when Tally refused to come. Shay leaves a note with directions just in case she changes her mind, and leaves for the Smoke.

On the day of Tally and Shay's birthday, Tally is ready to be pretty. Unfortunately, there's a problem. Since Shay has gone missing, Tally is taken to Special Circumstances. Special Circumstances tells Tally she has a choice, tell them what she knows and go find her friend, or stay ugly. Tally refuses to betray Shay, but after a few days, she gives in and gives Special Circumstances what they want.

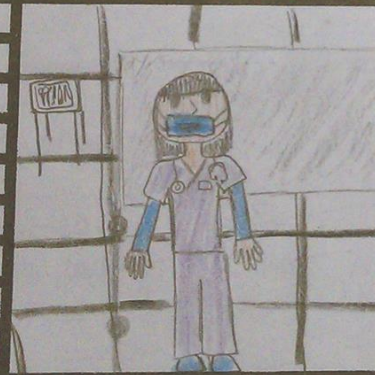

Tally received food, a hoverboard, and a tracker locket. After this, she heads out on the hoverboard and follows Shay's directions. It takes her a few days and a lot of falling, but she finally makes it to the rendezvous point where she is supposed to meet up with someone, or something.

Tally wakes up from her nap engulfed in flames. Groggily, she jumps into the river, soon enough, she's found by rangers. Once the rangers explain the process of mass burning (which Tally was caught in), they take her to another spot. It's here that she's reunited with Shay. She also meets Croy and David. The three of them lead Tally to the Smoke.

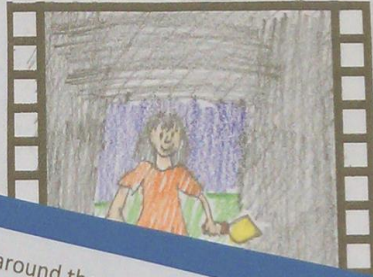

A little after Tally arrives at the Smoke, she meets David's parents. Tally is shocked when she notices how much David resembles his father, Az. Also, she is shocked and slightly quizzical when she learns that Shay has never visited Maddy and Az's home. When the three of them start to argue, Tally is confused when they talk as equals.

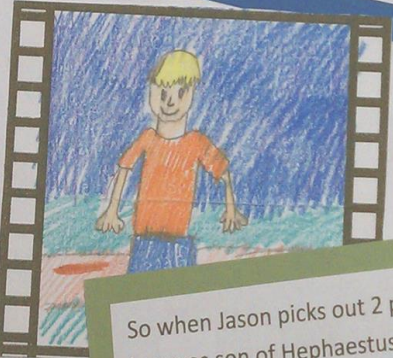

Tally learns what the prior dispute is about. Maddy and Az decide to tell Tally the truth about the operation. As it turns out, the operation not only makes you beautiful, but it also alters the way you think. During the operation, they put these little things called lesions in your brain. They aren't sure what they do, but they know that you can't think clearly.

4)

When Mika senses Ellie, he dashes to the front of their rundown apartment and opens the door. He sees two cops parked in a pod fighter. Embarrassed, the two fly away. Just beyond the shadows, where Mika can't see, Mal Garman's men are poised with guns, waiting for the order to kill. Mal Garman will threaten Ellie with killing her family if she doesn't go back. Mika wakes up his parents, and tells them how there were policemen outside. When they make Mika go back to bed, they notice spaghetti splatters on the bed. The conversation turns to washing the bed, but Mika refuses because he says it smells of Ellie. His parents get mad, and start arguing with him that Ellie is dead.

5)

Just then, Mal Garman's men finally shoot Ellie down into a river. Mika feels her pain and starts to choke. Meanwhile, Ellie's pod fighter starts to sink with her and pucks in it. Mal Garman's men land with plague suits on, for fear of pucks. They send divers in to retrieve the bodies. However, Ellie isn't dead. They see her thrashing around in the pod fighter with pucks screeching. Puck is their worst nightmare. All the men back away from the river. Back at Mika's home, he is still choking. His parents call an ambulance to take him to the hospital.

Mika's parents take him to the hospital as he passes out. They wait for two hours until a doctor comes out and tells them Mika is okay. Then the doctor talks about how Mika has webbed feet but isn't registered as a mutant. His parents say they only noticed the mutation a day after Mika was born. The doctor tells them it's the law and he has to be registered. Afterward, the talk turns to Ellie again, and the doctor says Mika will need a guidance counselor to help Mika forget about Ellie.

After a few weeks, Mika starts to see his counselor, Helen. Helen is an old woman and takes forever to get to the door. She always runs out of beverages, so whatever Mika drinks always has an apology attached. Helen is the only person other than Mika to believe the possibility of Ellie still being alive. This amuses Mika because Helen is to be curing his "insanity", not encouraging it. Later, Mika starts to talk about how he has been having nightmares again. He explains his dreams to Helen. They start with Mika lying in bed, choking. He is surrounded by a green curtain, and is wearing a white gown that doesn't cover his butt. The curtain starts to move, and then suddenly it's gone. Mika is then surrounded by people with old TVs for heads. Their faces are shown on the screens, all old and wrinkly. This is because of Everlife pills, special pills that let you live longer. However, you look like a skeleton with eyes. The dream continues with the Telly heads, as Mika calls them, discussing on how to eat him. The dream always ends there, with Mika making a horrible groaning noise.

Life behind the Wall is always dark and gloomy. Everyone in the Shadows live in fifty foot square fold down apartments. There was no point in throwing a tantrum, because you had to fold one thing down to use another. The school Mika went to was also gloomy. So it was a surprise to Mika when one day, he arrived at his classroom to find party balloons and streamers hung all over the place. At everyone's seat is a muffin. Later, a nurse arrives to tell them about a new drink called Fit Mix. However, to Mika's horror, the nurse is a Telly Head straight from his nightmares. He refuses to drink the Fit Mix. So, the principal is called down and threatens to force the Fit Mix down Mika's throat. Terrified, Mika accidentally splashes all of his Fit Mix right into his principal's face. He is taken down to the office, and is given a detention collar. This collar will shock Mika if he goes out his apartment. He is also given a bag of ten thousand tiny beads that he will have to sort according to color before going back to school. To top it off, his parents are given an one hundred credit fine.

Later, when Mika's parents come to his school, there is an obvious argument waiting to happen. Once they walk into their apartment, his parents start to yell at him. They start to talk about how the Fit Mix was supposed to help him grow, because all they ate was Fab Food; white fungus that is colored and flavored. Mika's father starts to talk about his and his wife's job's. David, Mika's father, drives a train everyday from Oxford to Glasgow forty eight times. In fact, a computer drives the car, David only watches a computer screen listening for warning beeps. Then David starts to talk about Asha, Mika's mother, who works at a rich people's real food theme restaurant and has to wear a ridiculous cowgirl costume. David starts to say that Mika has to drink the Fit Mix when he goes back. Mika refuses, and runs to his room, slamming the door.

Those from Gerald's mother came early in his life. Gerald's mother once took a lighter and held it against Gerald's palm, leaving a burn. This was punishment for Gerald. He had taken his mother's lighter and had been using it. Burning his hand was supposed to teach Gerald not to play with his mother's lighter.

When Gerald suffered by the fire, his mother was put in jail and paid great money charges. Gerald then moved into the living quarters of his Aunt Queen's house. Aunt Queen had so many things he couldn't do before and gave Gerald the freedom he had always dreamed of. For many years, Gerald could live happily in his new home that he never had before. For quite some time, Gerald led a wonderful life and cherished it.

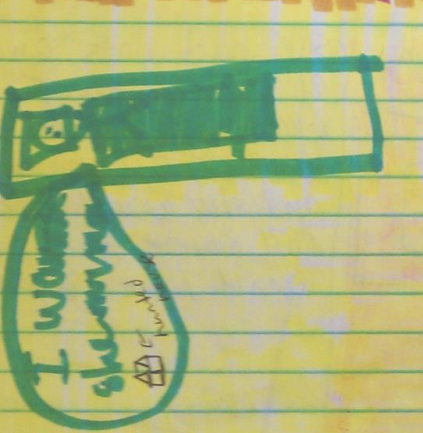

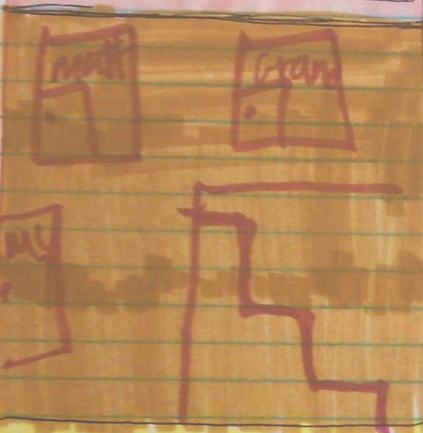

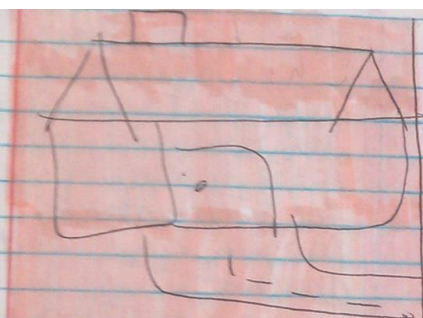

Gerald's mother smoked around her three-year-old son. He knew what a lighter was and knew how to use it as well. He was fascinated with the tiny "fire dancer" that lived inside of the lighter. One day, his mother left Gerald all alone and instructed him not to move from behind the couch as she often did. Gerald grew bored and found his mother's lighter outside of her bedroom door. He wanted to see the "fire dancer" come alive again so Gerald began to dance around and play with the fire on top of the table. Then, all of a sudden the fire caught on to the drapes. Gerald was frightened and bewildered by this. So, he crawled behind the couch and hoped his mother would return home soon. Then, when Gerald woke up, he was in the hospital. A neighbor had saved his life.

Gerald's kind Aunt Queen had an old wheelchair in the basement. To give Gerald something fun to do, she allowed him to disassemble the chair. Gerald had fun with this new hobby and eventually fixed his imagination and had work into what he called his "go cart." Once while Aunt Queen was sleeping, Gerald rode down the neighbor's steep driveway several times, increasing his speed each time. Then, Gerald started down the driveway once more when a car nearly hit him. Gerald ended up just fine but went in to face a very afraid and furious Aunt Queen.
